

Beata Caranci
Senior VP & Chief Economist
TD Bank Group

Beata Caranci is the Chief Economist and Senior Vice President for TD Bank Group. Having joined TD in 2003, she leads two economic teams. One is tasked with delivering forecasts, presentations, and research publications for TD clients, and another team oversees Canadian and U.S. economic risk and regulatory stress test requirements. Beata is the Chair of the Economic Council at the American Bankers Association, which meets with the Federal Reserve twice annually to discuss economic and policy views. She's also the Chair of TD's Expected Credit Loss Economic Scenario Committee.

Beata is a passionate supporter of TD's diversity initiatives and has dedicated more than a decade to researching and driving awareness among policymakers on the labour market friction experienced by women. Her research report, "Get on Board Corporate Canada," helped influence the Ontario Securities Commission's rule amendments on disclosure of women on boards. A separate report detailing the obstacles faced by women in STEM fields, led to an invitation to appear at the Senate Open Caucus to discuss policy prescriptions to counter systemic biases.

Beata's distinguished evidenced-based research combined with the breadth of her role as Chief Economist for TD Bank earned the Professional category award by WXN's Canada's Most Powerful Women.

Beata holds a Master's Degree in Business Economics. Prior to joining TD, she worked nearly four years on a trading floor providing economic analysis to foreign exchange, money market and bond desks.
